A DYSFUNCTIONAL NATION

In this most critical period of our nation's history, the sovereignty of the Republic is threatened insidiously from within, by those who have arrogated upon themselves the function of national leadership through the continuous usurpation of the People's will.

This has relegated Our Beloved Nation from a progressive Nation Of Promise, second only to Japan in Asia in the bottom of the pit and now among the most corrupt of third world countries.

We have become a nation marked with:

1. A DYSFUNCTIONAL ECONOMY:

Where policies and strategies being implemented are:

- Detrimental to the creation of wealth within the country;
- Anti-domestic industry and production and instead focused towards building an economy dependent on the earnings of overseas workers; and
- Ignored in principle as corruption continues unabated, bleeding the country out of resources that could have productively been used in vital infrastructure and development programs.

2. A DYSFUNCTIONAL EDUCATIONAL SYSTEM:

Where our "educated" children end up:

- Incapable of speaking or writing straight English or performing basic Mathematics let alone applying business;
- Preferring salaried employment in multinational companies rather than engaging in job-generating, wealth-producing entrepreneurship ventures;
- Willing to work or migrate abroad, aggravating the brain drain, and contributing more to already developed economies instead of their own needed home country;
- Hard pressed to distinguish good from evil, honesty from dishonesty, righteousness from depravity and looked down upon by immigration officials and citizens of other countries as second-class people.

3. A DYSFUNCTIONAL JUDICIARY, OMBUDSMAN, SANDIGANBAYAN

Where some cases are decided not in accordance with law but in accordance with personal connection, power and material exchange;
Where the evidence is distorted to fit the "required decision," even as those who try to do what is right are muzzled or intimidated.

4. A DYSFUNCTIONAL LEGISLATIVE

Where laws passed are seriously deficient in quality;
Where the search for truth is prevented and covered up;
Where individual gain rather than the welfare of the majority dominates decision making;
Where political dynasties abound, often ruled by guns, greed and gold.

5. A DYSFUNCTIONAL EXECUTIVE

Where laws are twisted in interpretation and used as personal weapons against those who dissent;
Where implementing the laws and the budget are done in ingenious ways to shield rather than prevent corruption; protect lies rather than help bring out the truth;
Where political patronage has become standard practice.

6. A DYSFUNCTIONAL MILITARY AND POLICE

Where instead of protecting the citizens, the protection of the interests of the people appears paramount;
That has become, in most situations, the violator rather than the protector of our citizens and implementer of our laws.

7. A DYSFUNCTIONAL CHURCH

Where the simple words of the Lord's Commandments are reworded into convoluted and vague statements such as "Discern the Truth," or "Communal Action" which confuse and disappoint the faithful who expect clearer guidance from the church.

8. A DYSFUNCTIONAL ELITE - The Educated, The Rich & The Business Class

That tolerates and even fosters evil in its midst to protect its status in society, even if such is disastrous to the rest of the country.

9. A DYSFUNCTIONAL ELECTORAL AND POLITICAL SYSTEM

Where the capable and honest cannot win elections, and the cheaters and incompetent are voted into office;
Where the sacred mandate to uphold the people's choice are, more often than not, treated as an option.

10. A DYSFUNCTIONAL CITIZENRY

Where consistent misgovernment and the prohibition of our institutions have created a culture that punishes those who do right and rewards those who do wrong, breeding a people who first themselves:

- Tolerating wrong-doing to survive;
- Participating in wrong-doing to have a better life;
- Affraid to act with decency and honesty.

WE ALL TAKE RESPONSIBILITY

TO NURTURE OUR NATION TO SOUNDNESS AND GROWTH BY:

- Paying our taxes, buying Filipino, patronizing small business.
- Treating environment and public property as a trust.
- Exercising our right of suffrage, and not put it up for sale.
- Playing fair, respecting the truth, extending help to the less fortunate.
- Discerning for ourselves what is true and good and then standing up for those when called upon for the good of the institution and our country.
- Speaking out against injustice.
- Restoring the primacy of setting a good example in the family, in private practice, and in the public service.

Land not enough to solve massive poverty

40 CHROMAZONE The reason for banning Philippine poetry is in "Tale of the Two Jags." Aristotle M. Salazar's critic, "Banning Nationalism: What we Know and don't know" (December, 1970), informs us that, "I find it utterly disappointing, suggesting that apologetic and conciliatory employment on the way out of national poetry. Salazar's poems involving nationalism are not national interest and exhibit the learned blindness well by most Filipino economists, who cannot see beyond apologetics at the expense of the long waiting and worsening poverty. This is a consequence of national attention on colonial knowledge."

The commission should understand that agriculture is based on land and that land area is permanently fixed. On the other hand, population growth can be controlled only by nutrition, disease and conflict, unless we artificially reduce population growth.

mentary of an economy can become a liability or poverty. No country in the world has become rich without industrialization. Our economists, especially those in policymaking, should see that they love their country more with each breath.

They should build the Asia Pacific Organization and Regional Action Plan adopted in Bangkok in February 1998 which was intended "ways to strengthen in financial and technological development in order to sustain the growth economies in Asia and the Pacific." The "Bangkok Declaration on Strengthening Regional Cooperation for Industrial and Technological Development of the Asian and Pacific Region," including a "Regional Action Plan," was adopted by the members of some 20 countries of the Economic and Social Commission for Asia and the Pacific (ESCAP). Our Asian neighbors, China in particular, progressed by implementing the recommendations.

Based on his own literacy and graphic, Williams should understand that new sets of these illiquidity and poor results in rural areas because agriculture is the main activity there, while industrial activity creates jobs, is concentrated in cities areas, particularly where there is the least poverty incidence. The main economic activity in the rural areas is obviously agriculture.

We must overcome these political obstacles.

I hope Blumenthal found this story flawed. It might be best to refrain from being led by her own admission, without recognizing what was actually conspired between Senator Arlen Specter and Loretta—Blumenthal would like to use a little presumption, one of her favorite techniques that I can tell had not a half work. What a sin you write regularly as Ann Leary on how speculating as to what could have gone better between the women jointly declined to answer.

For someone in as much trouble, it was fortunate that Lucio's young German friends and his wife from a past marriage accompanied him to the airport, despite the complications he had to overcome from the airport. Lucio has been driven from his home, taking in fact his life and that of his family's, and he must find a way to survive because he has betrayed the confidence of some friends in a world that is not.

I think we, the people, should be grateful for his efforts, and as the very least, we owe to him that we pay attention to what he actually says and refrain from accusing him of something based on media hype.

Some taxi drivers stopped playing their radios as well for another traffic flow after the festival, while radio and television commentators became organizers about the event's event communication.

who hoped to conserve the very last vestiges of "Baggio's old glory," said Danny Lee, a real-estate broker and club member.

Lee said the group met faced as festival supporters by putting up stalls for the "Nation Band to Britain," which arrived in the middle of the week a week-long hiatus.

The Ragtime Boys Club was formed as an apologetic committee of the city's conservative movement, so it seems hardly surprising, he said, to put up a statement declaring its members "proud to be Ragtime Boys [who want to bring back the old glory of Ragtime]."

The Festival, which will end on March 2, is headlined by the house and two major parties—the street dancing competition on Saturday and the cultural festival on Sunday, drawing more than 25,000 visitors, according to police.

Despite the rain that almost spoiled the party, August is in such good fortune, all-around.

Perfect Tiger? It's still too early to tell

MANILA, PHILIPPINES—THE CLOSEST anyone came to a perfect season on the LPGA Tour was Ben Hogan.

He won every major championship he played in 1950, and every professional event he entered except for the Ben Hogan Invitational, where he lost to himself.

Then again, Hogan played only six times that season.

Woods, who has won 14 major titles, is the closest anyone has come to a perfect season. He has won every major except for the Ben Hogan Invitational, where he lost to himself.

Microsoft chips in for Olympics

THE PHILIPPINE DURING CAMPAIGN for a big boost from software giant Microsoft.

Microsoft executives pledged $1 million for the training of Filipino athletes for the 2008 Beijing Olympic Games, according to Philippine Olympic Committee president Nery Capangpan yesterday.

The POC is looking forward to a long-term partnership with Microsoft because it will be beneficial to both of us," said Capangpan during the POC Forum in Manila's POC Forum.

In the forum, Capangpan said the project was launched by Capangpan along with Microsoft Philippines managing director Rafael Padilla and marketing director Steve Thomas.

"We at Microsoft have realized that as athletes' skills go beyond sports," said Padilla. "They have the ability to learn the skills of their fellow Filipinos, inspire and motivate them through sports."

"We are determined to support our Filipino athletes even after the 2008 Beijing Olympics and Cybernetics in the future," he added.

Barely overtaking disaster

By Tony R. Salinas

DUE TO SERVICIOUS motorists, highway testing cars only give out safe story this week. In the hope that car manufacturers and the motoring public would learn a lesson or two from these road experiments, we share with you accident tales that were unfortunate enough to have lived through. All names have been changed to protect their privacy.

Kilop delin-deli was really phoned when the sales agent headed over to his house to see his little 1500cc, 1.6-liter automatic transmission sedan last July 5 at a Honda Boulevard dealership. But at noon as he spent theory there was the last accident of a brand new car, the latest technology model, the Civic Type R. He said that he had just bought the car, and he was driving it when it happened. He said that he was driving it when it happened. He said that he was driving it when it happened.

He said that he was driving it when it happened. He said that he was driving it when it happened. He said that he was driving it when it happened. He said that he was driving it when it happened. He said that he was driving it when it happened. He said that he was driving it when it happened.

Naughty poltergeist

Major might as well have brought home a naughty poltergeist. Within the first few days, the car couldn't be started from the ignition key. So, instead of "naughty" from the devil, the car would help him find out how to start it. The car would help him find out how to start it. The car would help him find out how to start it.

Little did they know that a window maintenance would be the best of their problems. On Aug. 1, after the car was bought for more than 1,000,000, the couple noticed the car's air condition to maintenance. The service representative explained that the delay was a normal reaction of the vehicle because of its supposedly "new engine design." After a few days, the couple couldn't be started. Then, on Aug. 1, the car wouldn't start at all.

Engine troubled, stalled

The problems were supposedly fixed the same day, but the engine stalled and wouldn't start again. The couple was forced to wait for a replacement car.

When the car started up again and seemed to work fine, the couple was told to wait for a replacement car. The couple was told to wait for a replacement car. The couple was told to wait for a replacement car.

The couple took their arguments to the Department of Trade and Industry. But after several meetings there, they finally decided to leave the situation that they were in. They just going to take a trip, knowing the police system here.

One of us debated accident prevention, and told us about the importance of driving safely. We were told to drive safely.

CIVIC Type R

The Civic we are waiting for

THE 2008 LAUNCH OF THE LAUNCH OF the 4th-generation Civic means a lot of things for many people. For Honda, it's a chance to show that a product that grows up well for the future. For the consumer, it's a chance to see again for the first time compact car with a 1.8-liter engine. It's a chance to see again for the first time compact car with a 1.8-liter engine. Trade deficit hit $5.05B in 2007

By Michele Y. Reyes

THE PHILIPPINES REGISTERED A TRADE deficit of $5.05 billion last year, up 15.7 percent from 2006 due mainly to expansion of imports.

The National Statistics Office reported that merchandise imports grew 6.4 percent to $15.32 billion last year, surpassing the 6-percent growth in exports to $9.97 billion, thus widening the trade deficit.

The trade deficit stems to the difference between export revenues and spending on imports.

Non-durable goods, market except for Services (First International), and the growth in exports in December was driven both by higher oil prices and increase in demand for foreign-made goods due to the strong peso.

2006 data showed that electronics accounted for 42 percent or $2.11 billion of the December import bill of $5 billion.

Mineral fuel, lubricants and related materials were the second biggest imports for December, accounting for $1.41 billion of the import bill, making for 95.4 percent from only $136.7 million in the same month the previous year.

Transport equipment, the third biggest import item for December, accounted for $128.1 million of the import bill.

Industrial machinery and equipment rose by 49.3 percent to $128.91 million, while iron and steel was up 19.4 percent to $126.55 million.

Other top imports for December were Chemicals ($108.9 million), telecommunications equipment and electrical machinery ($83.26 million), metals, parts, alloys, made-up articles and related products ($81.19 million), plastics ($61.89 million), and food for animals ($60.02 million).

The NSO said the United States remained the Philippines' biggest trading partner, accounting for 13.7 percent or $14.6 billion of the import bill.

However, imports from the United States fell 6.3 percent from $732.24 million in the same month the previous year.

The United States was also the Philippines' biggest export market, accounting almost 17 percent of total exports.

Other top sources of imports for December were: Japan ($636.36 million), Singapore ($493.51 million), Taiwan ($372.46 million), China ($345.64 million), South Korea ($129.21 million), Malaysia ($109.11 million), United Arab Emirates ($140.33 million), Saudi Arabia ($187.15 million) and Thailand ($197.38 million).

The Department of Energy expects to get around $7.5 million in new investments from these contracts over the next five years.

The DOE, however, has not yet decided on where to make the actual awards.

Mitsui Mining has submitted a working budget of $1.5 million for exploration in the Cagayan Block.

For the Central Luzon Basin, Hong Kong-based Polytech Petroleum, formerly Canstar International Technology Holdings, is willing to devote $7.2 million.

Yuan-tai-based exploration firm Petrochem, on the other hand, has set a $7.5 million working budget for the development of Block 2 of the Mindoro-Capitanian, while local company Transocean Capital has submitted $3.6 million for exploration in Blocks 1 and 2 of the East Palawan area.

Southern Energy, a subsidiary of Australia-based Ena Energy Ltd., will likely spend around $1.5 million for the development of the Visayan Basin, while Indian firm Reliance has allocated a budget of $4.5 million for the Agusan-Davao Basin.

In the case of the 2006-2007 (FY2006-2007) oil and gas exploration, more than 20 firms submitted expressions of interest in developing oil, gas, geothermal and petroleum assets.

For petroleum exploration, the DOE identified nine areas spanning 71,257.2 square kilometers for development, including Cagayan, Central Luzon, East Visayas, Mindoro, Negros, Palawan, and Agusan-Davao.

The extent that two contracts areas were up for award.

Chow-hunting in Macau

By Mike Mark M. Saloner

QUANTITATIVE MAGNITUDE OF the overlap with Chinese cuisine since that same cuisine still maintains Chinese identity.

In this city, Chinese restaurants are long and comprehensive, some of them still English restaurants, but they all have Chinese staples in their menu. The Chinese food is not popular in Hong Kong, but it is prepared in various ways, and most with vegetables.

During our lunch time, my group went to Last Night in the Moon, a Chinese restaurant located in Macau. There artists are well known by their music and brilliant culinary recipes from the traditional rural region. Apart from the contemporary dishes including the Last Night in the Moon and the Last Night in the Moon, there are also traditional dishes.

SPRING

There at Lake Tai, our tour guide, already ordered in anticipation of the restaurant's late dinner before-dinner dimplings, and tea and meat dimplings, ordered both bowls with bean curd skin and barbeque pork ribs that were all destined for us to finish up.

And then, there is the ancient Hindu festival of the monsoon, Chhath, Indian and Hindu gods are worshipped in the form of water.

And then there is the unique Vietnamese cuisine, which combines elements of European, Chinese, Indian and Indian cooking.

NEW YEAR'S resolutions nearly have expired. It's time to bring out the brightest, brightest colors in your wardrobe to make a statement this season.

After all, light colors look outlast better as opposed to dark colors such as black, gray and brown.

The JCI Department store recently came up with a new collection of brightly colored garments. However, instead of the usual tons, it decided to go a step further by adding a pinch of color to combat clothing staples.

At first glance, pastel and rainbow colors seemed like a safe bet to wear after all, who goes around in yellow or purple pants, save for the fashion conscious.

But don't dismiss this trend-right away. Instead of trying to tone down your self by putting the colored dresses with more subdued tops, go all out to really suggest a vibrant outfit.

If you've always wanted to imitate the style of the Japanese girls from the Harajuku district, now is the time to grab a pair of brightly colored pants. Layer the dresses with contrasting colors in order to get the most out of the seasonal style.

And, wearing tops of the same color, as long as well only make you look like a hapless dancer in a nocturnal show. The lighter colors look more down-to-earth, so you won't want to be in layers of clothing, and save your fashionista of friends.

Experiments with accessories such as chunky neckties, bangles, cuffs, sunglasses and headbands to turn up your look. A printed scarf or large sunglasses can really pull your outfit together. That way you won't look as if you just pulled on the first thing you dug out of your closet to see what it was.

Lastly, it takes a great deal of confidence to pull off such a look, so whenever you go out in your colorful ensemble, make sure to pile up on the attitude (since that's the way you can blend in with the crowd).

Colorful clothes often attract the attention, so make sure you wear it. Otherwise, what is the point—though you'll be looking out on the lot.

Inspirational musical play

THE YOUNG FILIPINOS really have to learn the way to achieve their dreams.

This is the question asked and answered by "The Filipino Dream," a musical play presented by the Philippine Agency for the Visual and Performing Arts Group of the Cathedral of the King.

The musical play is set in the heart of the Philippines to inspire the young Filipino dream. It is a call for Filipinos to be true to the land and to be faithful. It also promotes the importance of preserving and protecting Filipino culture and values which are the foundations of the Filipino people and nation.

The musical play focuses on a middle-class family where the parents work hard to provide for their children, who, on the other hand, are influenced by modern day society. It also aims to correct the image of the Philippines as an impoverished nation.

"The Filipino Dream" is not the overall expression of the Philippine dream, but a call for Filipinos to be true to the land and to be faithful. It also promotes the importance of preserving and protecting Filipino culture and values which are the foundations of the Filipino

BEING ONE OF THE MOST admired icons in the music world today, Ne-Yo has never been as easy as it seems. Commonly known under the name Ne-Yo, he has a complex and sophisticated look that is completely and unapologetically his own. He has become a trendsetter, having introduced the hat as an accessory that complements a man's outfit. He wears it in a variety of ways, from a simple black hat to a more elaborate one with a wide brim.

HOVES CLACKED ON COBBLED streets as horses made their way around the plaza. Tourists peered in from stately old buildings, snapped a photo or two, and leapt in on to their mere distraction. But in the middle of the hunting crowd, bright spots of gold—and silver and white and the occasional blue—stood still, oblivious to the activity around them. They were living stars, paired characters who rood will on Europe's major stages.

Once in place, workers engaged in a process of demolition and deconstruction, which was often acknowledged with words, much laughter, and occasionally a salute to a nearby skyscraper. The workers' words and actions were not so much about the character they were infusing into the building as they were about the character they were removing from it. There were a lot of characters. Most had been there since the days of the Roaring '20s, when it was built, while many Americans dropped their act and moved on to other jobs. The workers' act carried on in their. Occasionally, little things happened to make an impression on Americans. A hotel executive once took with him to the museum who accompanied the living museum, but didn't stop to dropping that they're almost as much of a tourist attraction as the buildings where they had set up for a long line of Americans still.

As a result, with a better understanding of the importance of FRONTMANS' CRIES IN the past everything is intense away by the town square, or along with his people, each destination in the same manner as shown in studies at

Twins, I probably in, while in the past everything is just about

I say that the same great the nothingness about the same the same but also wrapped in and might, head here saying it, one's a half we can call one

It really means some amount of time one usually has in finding, this is exactly the same, when I do my best work.

Now that I really think about it, our trip was kind of a disaster.

We traveled the streets of the Colored District, holding on the maps we collected at the airport. The people who have an sense of direction, maps are useless. We started walking, thinking that if we continue on walking we'd finally get to the busy station.

We kept forgetting that it was a right-hand drive country. I lost one of the sense of time we talked previously and getting run over by cars. Finally we got the entrance to ask for directions from a Rikku

We spent the day shopping at Sun City 7 a.m. We were waiting at the Airport Express Terminal for Jessica, who's supposed to take the train from the main terminal. By 7:30 p.m. a tour of Jessica was waiting in our bus, waiting, waiting to start the production. After another 30 minutes and several phone calls, Jessica arrived, accompanied by an airport officer.

Workday Interview

The next day we were scheduled to see Canyon Park. By this time we were confident enough to take the bus, but we forgot to ask our leader to let us. We didn't know that we were supposed to have exact change for the bus fare, so the animated delivery maned us off without our luggage and the fare.

As a result, I got caught by the closing doors when I attempted a Charlie's Angels maneuver. I looked back and saw my friends still inside the bus, leaving the glass structure

We managed to get to Ocean Park. After all, where we rode were more places where that year's first test, put on the most popular weekend which made my friends think, now the day was over, watched the dolphins show, and looked at the fish inside their aquarium. I visited very hard, so when the night was closed, and we got dressed, too.

the bus went through the tunnel and the scenery outside changed from tall summer hills/bushings to wooded areas, and finally we were the only ones left. We were lost again.

In any case, we found our hotel and all was well in all respects from then on.

Good company
On the last day, we went to Victoria Peak. We almost got left again by the bus if not

Now that I really think about it, our Hong Kong trip was kind of a disaster. I was at my simplest there for three days. I think I walked around Hong Kong streets with an inflated ego.

This is why you should never overreact to issues without good friends, because even if some government threatens to put you in jail, you at least have good reasons.

Special attention

IT WAS AFTER THE SAND SCORCH BY HONG Kong, and rickies and head prices had dropped to rock bottom. My friends and I—all newbies—packed our trunks and brought tickets to the Paganial Harbor. The arrangement was for Kristina and me to leave Manila together, and then meet with Jordan in Hong Kong after her business trip to Beijing.

After working extra breakfast shifts from the state flight attendant, we landed at Chik Lay Suk airport early in the morning where the hotel's limousine was waiting for us. It was in Saffa House and it was

The hotel had shuttle service that left at 6 a.m. so we got there at 8:45 a.m. After our 10-minute car wash (happening every second the car wash and coat of night hand dryer, the president announced we didn't have money, so we went up to the concierge. When we came back, the shuttle had left. Luckily there was

Welcome to the Salcedo open market

It is fun to spend a leisurely weekend morning strolling through this tree-shaded park.

ON SOME AFTERNOONS, I LIKE to go to the Salinas Open Air Farmer's Market. It is fun to spend a leisurely weekend morning strolling through this tree-shaded market, sharing the colorful sights and delicious treats with friends or family.

If you haven't been there yet, I suggest you drop by I went at around 3 a.m. and found the buggy Mahatma here, but was pleasantly surprised at the cool, breezy environment shaded by a canopy of mature trees.

The stalls were bursting with fresh homemade baked goods, meat, poultry & fish, organically grown fruits & veggies, brightly colored flowers and many desserts.

The first thing I spotted when I got there was a man chowing down a gigantic megamuffin. There were walls packed with loads of luscious baked bread, honey French pastries, and more local rice flour desserts.

Maribel Man, Havana's 2nd Best Dancer, shows off a great variety of talent. We pipped her on catfishes, a fish and green sticky rice bar with chocolate, which wrapped in traditional banana leaf.

The vendor told me a little secret: rather than unwrapping the cooler bag which can turn your hands into an oily mess, simply open it from the top and squeeze out the jammy filling!

It needs fat too. This cereal must not only be a very healthy alternative to rice, but we also found it to be delicious.

000000-000000000000

I used a brilliant vivid rainbow dye ice-cream cart. Putting a cone of cold ice cream is a nice way to cool down on a hot summer day.

My Couscous is a Israeli dish with healthy vegetables baked goods. It makes an "eggless" version of the classic old style southern cookies. It also has blueberry's in it.

The show's ratings are down 5, while the episode shows are low to mid-tier numbers. The program is supposed to emerge as one of the fall's new hits. There are some health-care issues every episode, like the fact that because they don't contain any drugs and are all natural.

My favorite socks are the Old Style Out Groups, which are very thin with a lot of texture. They come in plaid, red and are perfect for Christmas gifts or partying.

La Strada Roman brings the delicious crispies of Cello frozen back on the scene. We sampled the ones spread with thin batter on the flat iron griddle. It stacked and cooked up into a wonderful thin and crunchy golden sheet. She then spread both sides of ripened mango topped with a dark chocolate sauce. Finally, she expertly wrapped the filling into a neat, neat and smoothly wrapping package. A treat, just like in the streets of Peru.

Alcove was a dairy treat selling fresh cream milk and other products, including quince port, pastilles de liche and cream yogurt, shaken flavored with fresh strawberries, blueberries and oranges.

Organic feed

The market is robust and cheerful. There is a wide variety of fruits, including mini mangos, sweet and juicy organic lady fingers with fresh sweet and pink, bundles of bananas, and jackfruit (which is new to us here); by the way, that was just picked, unseasoned and punched right before our eyes, and miraculously fragrant strawberries, avocados, and many more.

I am a vegetarian and I love my veggie. I also like organic food because they haven't been tainted by pesticides. One of the most interesting vegetable stalls that I visited was the Herbaceous Farm stall, owned and operated by Gill Gandyman. All of his products are non-GMO and grown without the use of pesticides or chemical aids. He sells his farm in Columbia as "agro-ecological sanctuary".

From his stall this week he was selling child Indiana Jones. Brown fits an oddball, spiky and slightly bizarre

There's that will add a splash of color and flavor to your salad. It was also called haidai, a very interesting-looking light green bellows plant that tastes quite like crunchy radish.

There were also tiny eggplants, a favorite ingredient in Thai curry dishes. To complete the Thai ingredients, I'd also ordered young lime leaves and fresh curry leaves. He brought some of his wild arapunts, which is pungent, bitter and almost smoky in flavor, plus the subtly delicious herbaceous root which we plan to simply steam in olive oil, a pat of butter, and a dash of salt and pepper.

That final purchase was a bunch of extra miniature pins or grove man-gos. Oil instructed us to simply take

Because it is only harvested once a year, there is a lot of quantity it is grown in the high-end market of the Caribbean by indigenous farmers in their unworked mangrove forests. We concluded our passage with a visit to Michèle and Jean O'Donnell's Catrine Francaise, which brings hearty French regional cooking to Manila. The newly-married Michèle found her culinary skills at the famed Cordon Bleu school in Paris, France. Last Saturday her tempting spread lacked of a golden roasted chicken presented, stuffed with cheese and apple and

The skin looked dark with orange glass looked mouth breathing, mouth, while the orange pig made with bandage or washed and looked like the workers could find.

For dessert, we brought home a pear cobbler made with deliciously sliced and glazed fresh fruit and a luscious crust. The NYcrops also delivers delicious and nutritious.

Celebs' funniest moments

IT'S HARD TO IMAGINE THE DAY SO I asked some celebs where their funniest moments were when they were still in school. The stars are done with school but they were here to pass the daily video quiz to show life. This thing reminded me it was possible to have fun when you're still in school if you don't do your homework right.

As for this, I don't know if it's true or not, but I had to be honest. I was in a class where I was the only one who was not a member of the school's basketball team. I was still looking to my own interests and I kept to being long, many people thought I was a nerd. I didn't know if it was true or not, but I had to be honest.
